Sound too good to be true? NEA recently launched a new approach to professional development called micro-credentials. The system allows educators to show mastery of specific and discrete competencies and to receive recognition for this mastery. Educators (including Paraeducators) use the completion of the Micro-credential from NEA to earn one Iowa License Renewal credit through ISEA Academy. In order to respond responsibly to the COVID-19 outbreak there are Micro-credentials that are listed that do not require student interactions but continues to be professional development that is meaningful and relevant.
